COL. LOCKE SAYS FAIR IS THE BEST

Has Directed Many Fairs But None to Equal El Paso.

Colonel M. F. Locke is 86 years of age. But he went out to see the El Paso fair and declared it the "best ever."

Colonel Locke, who served in two wars, ought to know something about fairs, for in his earlier day he was commissioner of mines and agriculture of Arkansas, and directed many county and state fairs in the eastern state.

But Col. Locke is a Texan by birth and rearing. He fought with Jeff Davis in the Mexican war, and commanded the 10th Texas cavalry in the Civil war.

Col. Locke came to El Paso from Little Rock about a year ago. With his wife he is living at 807 Boulevard.

PRIZE CAKES TO BE SOLD BY AUCTIONEER.

The cakes which won prizes at the fair will be auctioned off tonight in the women's department at the fair grounds, following the fireworks display. The cakes which did not win prizes were claimed by their owners and most of them taken back to town. Among the cakes exhibited was one made by the domestic science department of the high school, and another by Mrs. Dan Kelly, which showed rare art work in the use of imitation fruits.

DOLL SHOW.

The doll show in the women's department at the fair opened Friday morning. The judges are Misses Elizabeth Stevens, Marie Rich and Irene Laughlin.

FAIR NOTES.

W. C. Bulger's pen of five Langshans chickens scored 40 points in the judging of poultry at the fair. This is within 12 points of Walter Long's Plymouth White Rocks.

In the poultry awards, the name of J. Whitney Webb, of El Paso, who won third prize in the white Plymouth Rock pullet class, was announced as J. Whitney, of Webb City, Tex.

Van Patton's Indians, who appeared in the Os-Aple parade Thursday night, are giving their dances on the Overland Trail each afternoon and evening.

A message was received from Guthrie Smith, of the Alamogordo, N. M. News, Thursday stating that it would be impossible for him to come.

He sent his paper to be read at the convention of the Southwestern Editorial association, but it arrived too late.
